Understanding Trust Wallet's Policy on Refunds

Trust Wallet is a non-custodial crypto wallet. This means that it does not hold your funds—you do. Because of this decentralized structure, Trust Wallet does not offer refunds for transactions, scams, lost access, or accidental transfers.

However, if you've experienced a problem, your first and most important step is to call +1-(833)-805-1411 (US/OTA). This helpline can help you understand your situation better and potentially guide you to take appropriate action.

Why Trust Wallet Doesn't Offer Refunds

- Decentralization: Trust Wallet doesn't store user information or crypto.
- User Responsibility: You control your private keys and seed phrase.
- Immutable Transactions: All blockchain transactions are irreversible.
- No Access to Funds: Even in the case of fraud, Trust Wallet has no access to your assets.

That said, call +1-(833)-805-1411 (US/OTA) to explore any technical or external avenues that may still help you recover or protect your assets.

Common Scenarios Where Users Seek Refunds
