✓ What Kinds of Name Changes Does Delta Allow?

Delta does not allow you to simply give your ticket to someone else — for example, you cannot change "Sarah Johnson" to "Michael Smith" because you can't travel. [ 1-833-301-3812] That is considered a transfer, and transfers are not permitted. But Delta does allow name corrections, which include:

- ✓ Spelling mistakes: Fixing typos like "Jonh" to "John."
- ✓ Swapped names: Correcting reversed first and last names.
- ✓ Missing middle name: Adding a middle name if it's on your passport.
- ✓ Legal name changes: If you got married, divorced, or legally changed your name.

The golden rule? If the person flying stays the same, Delta usually helps you fix the name. If you want a different person to fly instead, you'll have to cancel and buy a new ticket. To confirm your specific case, always call 1-833-301-3812. Delta's experts at 1-833-301-3812 will check your booking and fix it if possible.

✓ Are There Fees for Name Corrections on Delta Tickets?

Good news: Delta typically does not charge a fee for minor spelling corrections. They want your ID and ticket to match so you don't have issues at the airport. [ 1-833-301-3812 ] But if your correction requires a new ticket to be reissued — like for a legal name change that affects your passport match — you might have to pay a reissue fee or fare difference, especially on international tickets.

If you booked through a travel agency or third party, your options may be different — some agencies have stricter rules. Always confirm fees or reissue policies directly with Delta at 1-833-301-3812. ### ✓ Why Name Changes Aren't Allowed for Transfers

Many travelers wonder why Delta doesn't just let you swap the name completely. The reason is simple: airline tickets are non-transferable for security and pricing reasons. Your fare is tied to your name, date of birth, and ID. [ 1-833-301-3812 ] If airlines allowed name swaps, tickets could be resold, leading to fraud or security risks. That's why no major U.S. airline allows passengers to fully change the name to someone else.

So if you can't travel but someone else wants your seat, the only option is usually to cancel the ticket (subject to fare rules) and book a new ticket in the other person's name. To protect your money, always check your fare's refund or eCredit options by calling 1-833-301-3812. The Delta team at 1-833-301-3812 can help you cancel properly and save any eligible credit for yourself.

✓ Special Cases: Group or Corporate Bookings

If you booked as part of a group, school trip, or corporate block, name correction rules can be more flexible — or more restricted — depending on your contract. [ 1-833-301-3812] Some group fares allow limited name substitutions before tickets are issued, but not after. Corporate travel programs sometimes have additional support for legal name changes. Always double-check by calling 1-833-301-3812. The Delta business team at 1-833-301-3812 can review your contract and process group changes correctly.
